THE DERBY CALENDAR

THE DERBY CALENDAR has been compiled to present, day by day, the important events in United States history that have occurred on each day in the year, the object in view being a collection of anniversaries, rather than a strictly chronological record. All previous compilations of dates have separated the events by years so that to be able to find what transpired on January 1st, for instance, it is necessary to search for that date under every year for nearly three centuries.

THE DERBY CALENDAR was compiled from THE NATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY, a work prepared upon original lines, and with such carefulness and accuracy as to be pronounced official.

In view of the great prevalence of incorrect dates in works of reference, and realizing that the value of any such work is in proportion to its accuracy, every effort has been made to systematically verify all historical dates and birthdays, and while it was not possible to find the gravestones, the family Bibles, and the vital statistics in every instance, it is believed that the records here presented are absolutely without error. To insure their being entirely so, the publishers have made the offer for the discovery of an inaccuracy set forth on the following page.

THE DERBY CALENDAR will be found to be particularly useful for schools, not only in assisting the pupil's memory by the association of events, but, also, in furnishing daily subjects for study, discussion and celebration appropriate to the occasion.

$10 REWARD $10

TO ANY PURCHASER of the DERBY CALENDAR who, having discovered an error in any date recorded therein, will so notify us and will submit proof of such error, we hereby agree to send a proof copy of the photogravure reproduction of Carpenter's Lincoln (price, $10), the only portrait of President Lincoln painted from life, and reproduced in photogravure for the first time this year, 1903.

NEW YORK

THE DERBY CALENDAR.

This collection of dates has been compiled from the volumes of the NATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY, but it represents by no means the full extent of the contents of that stupendous work. The names here recorded are but a very small fraction of the entire Cyclopedia, which will be found to be most thoroughly representative of every period and of every section of the United States, as well as absolutely complete in the records of all officials of national prominence.

The list of its nominating and advisory editors comprises over 300 of the best known people in the United States.

THE NATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY

is a comprehensive history of the United States illustrated in the lives of its projectors, founders, defenders, governmental administration and institutions, and aims to exemplify and perpetuate American civilization through its chief personalities.

In the gathering of material for this work there has been inaugurated a system of local contributions from every section of the country, by which are secured the facts in reference to many persons who have heretofore been omitted from biographical notice. Our American annals are full of characters worthy of the emulation of posterity; but their story will perish, bearing no fruit, if it be not gathered up, and preserved by some such method of extended research as has been adopted by the publishers of this work.

Unlike all other cyclopedic works heretofore published, it has not tied itself to a rigid and unyielding method of alphabetical order, but has grouped its individuals in the order of their work in the various fields of activity. To a person desirous of being thoroughly informed as to the United States, her men and her institutions, no single work offers such an amount of information in so condensed and comprehensive a form.

THE NATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY

is not a Directory of living Americans or a Biographical Dictionary of Names, but a Cyclopedia, containing lengthy and carefully written biographies of persons prominently identified with every feature of the development and growth of this country since its discovery.

A glance at the dates throughout this calendar will show that the earliest period of United States history is as fully and thoroughly covered as the later.

It is a History of the United States as illustrated in the lives of the founders, builders and defenders of the republic, and of the men and women who are doing the work and moulding the thought of the present time.

Complete in 12 royal octavo volumes, half Russia (only).

Price, $10.00 per volume

The Best Portrait

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

In a remarkable degree this portrait discloses that tender, human side of his character, which the world learned to know and love, and it portrays his naturally cheerful temperament, while revealing that undercurrent of sadness which pervaded his later years. It is the only portrait that satisfactorily interprets Lincoln's character. It is also the only portrait of President Lincoln ever painted from life. Lincoln himself said of it: "There is more of me in this portrait than in any representation of me ever made."

F. B Carpenter—My dear Sir: Your portrait is not only the best ever taken of Mr. Lincoln, by the unanimous consent of all who have seen it, but it is so associated with the grandest and most memorable act of his administration, that it has an additional and peculiarly historical interest. No American eye, loyal to the country, can look upon it for many years to come without being at once suffused with tears and lighted with triumph.

Most truly yours, RICHARD S. STORRS.

AMERICAN GENEALOGY

"There is now growing up a taste for genealogical trees and family histories. The singular development of the Revolutionary and Colonial societies of America has made an immense demand for biographical, genealogical and historical information. In this work the New Englanders take the lead; next to them come the Knickerbockers, of New York. The Palatines have made a beginning, as have the Scotch settlers of Virginia and Tennessee, the Mayflower descendants, and a few of the Cavalier families of the South."—THE MAGAZINE OF AMERICAN HISTORY, September, 1902.

has made a specialty of the genealogies and family histories of the subjects, tracing the descent back to the earliest American ancestor, and as most of these records have been obtained from the families and descendants themselves, and owing to the carefulness with which they have been revised and corrected, the work is the most valuable for such research that has ever been published.

The Cleveland World.—"Prepared upon such lines, The National Cyclopedia of American Biography becomes a full history of the United States. For instance, for a history of the customs and times of the early colonial period, what better source than in the lives of the Pilgrim fathers and the colonial governors! And so we find just such a history in a group of the Massachusetts governors arranged in chronological order and covering twelve or more pages of this work."

AMERICAN AUTHORS

The largest collection of the lives of American Authors, living and dead, is in

The National Cyclopedia of American Biography

The pen names alone number nearly 1,500—all Americans.

The biographies will be found to be longer than in other reference works, containing full accounts of the authors' lives, lists of works, criticisms, etc., and they are absolutely authentic and trustworthy.

JAMES T. WHITE & CO., New York

THE NATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY

As illustrating the historical and chronological method of arrangement, the first thirty-one pages of volume IX. contain a complete account of the late Spanish War, in the lives of its chief participants. Events leading to the declaration of war are given in the biographies of Fitzhugh Lee, Captain Sigsbee and Stewart L. Woodford, who begin the group. The biographies of Admiral Dewey, Captain Gridley, etc., follow, giving the battle in Manila Bay, after which come Rear-Admirals Schley and Sampson, and the other commanders in the naval battle off Santiago; General Shafter, General Wheeler, Colonel Roosevelt, etc., covering the land campaign in Cuba; General Brooke, General Miles and others, covering the Puerto Rico campaign, and ending with Generals Merritt and Otis, in the capitulation of Manila. These biographies were prepared with the utmost care, and in every case were submitted to the officers themselves for final correction and approval. THE LIFE OF DEWEY is the first reliable and authentic biography of the third Admiral of the U. S. navy, having been compiled from data furnished by his family, and from official records, and having been submitted for correction and approval to his son, and to his sister, and finally having been revised by the Admiral himself. The biography of Wesley Merritt was pronounced by him the best ever written.

AMERICAN INVENTORS

As in many other things, the United States outranks the world in inventive ingenuity.

Some of the most prominent inventors of the age are entirely unknown to the general public. The editors of the Cyclopedia have obtained their biographies and descriptions of their inventions, which are here published for the first time.

Who has heard of the inventor of the Overhead Trolley device, which has revolutionized the street-car industry? His life is to be found exclusively in THE NATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY, and there are hundreds of others.

George H. Hepworth, of the New York Herald.—"The work is a fine specimen of the mechanic art, the type is all that can be reasonably desired, and the binding looks as though the student could use the volume for constant reference without injury. It is no small task for a publisher to engage in an enterprise of this kind, for the work of preparation is vast, requiring not only plenty of patience and the expenditure of a great deal of money, but also a degree of accuracy which only the well-trained scholar can furnish. I am sure I do not go too far when I say that the business firm which puts in the market a biographical work of this kind is a public benefactor, and I hope the present work will prove profitable."

CAPTIVE MEMORIES

A delightful book of original verse, commemorating the anniversary days of a lifetime. The introduction sets forth the intention of the book:

"Every heart has its anniversary days. It keeps some of them in the company of its friends, but many of them it keeps in its secret chamber alone,—save, perhaps, for the companionship of tears. But tears are the handmaidens of Joy as well as of Sorrow, and are often delightful companions. It is these unacknowledged anniversary days that are here commemorated.

"The fragrance of these floral tributes may haply serve to awaken other memories—phantoms of bygone days—a golden tress, which will bring delight to careworn and overburdened hearts. These fragrant memories are Nature's lullabies, with which she smooths her children's restless pillows, and sends them smiling to their final sleep. But they take flight at the noise and bustle of this work-a-day world, and are reluctant to return, for all the heart's enticement.

"It is the purpose of this little volume to prepare for these heart memories an abiding place, to which it may charm them back, and, perchance, betray them to captivity."

"The most beautiful Gift-Book I ever saw."

The Literary World.—"We are impressed with two things about this Cyclopedia, first the thoroughness and care with which the important sketches have been prepared,—sketches of public men well known and occupying historic places in the affairs of the nation; and second, the great number of obscure names that find place, persons of whom the world has heard little or knows less, but of whom occasionally one wants to learn definitely, and could hardly hope to learn anywhere else. In this respect, the work is fitted to be useful beyond any other with which we are acquainted in the same field."

Wilmington News.—"The published volumes of the National Cyclopedia of American Biography make it evident that for the first time this country is to have a reference book which will not confine itself to a repetition of names that are to be found in all cyclopedias, but one which will be adequate, and which will place within reach authentic information in regard to the important and active men in all parts of the United States. This country has long needed a biographical dictionary of precisely the comprehensive quality which this work possesses, and we are very much mistaken if the publishers in preparing this work have not surpassed any existing work of this kind."

"I consider the statements quite correct from every standpoint."
—LOYALL FARRAGUT.

THE NATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY

HOW IT WAS MADE.

No pains and expense were spared to insure the greatest accuracy and reliability. The data were obtained from the families, if possible; otherwise the earliest and most authentic publications were consulted. The biographies were prepared with the utmost care, and in every case copies were submitted to the individuals themselves, or to their relatives or descendants for correction and revision, and they were not published until they had been so corrected and revised, whenever the reliability of the original information was doubtful. In some cases copies were submitted four and five times to insure complete accuracy. The statements, therefore, may be relied upon as absolutely correct.

Prof. W. O. Sproull, University of Cincinnati, O.—"The National Cyclopedia of American Biography is a work which will furnish the most valuable material for a history of the political, educational, religious and social development of the United States. The selection of the editors and revisers insures thoroughness and accuracy. The mechanical execution of the work is excellent in every respect."

RELIGIONS

There are twenty-seven distinct religious sects, all strictly American, described in the volume of THE NATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY. The accounts include their history, doctrine, growth, following, and statistics, and the information is fuller than any other books of reference.

The National Cyclopedia of American Biography

is not confined to the bare records of the subject's life, but includes the history of his life-work and accomplishments, or the movement with which his life was identified.

A. W. Whelpley, Librarian of Public Library of Cincinnati.—"I want to give you an item in regard to one case of its immediate usefulness, which cannot fail to be of interest. The manufacturers of this country met in this city, and formed an association, electing for the president Mr. Thomas Dolan, of Philadelphia. It was desirable to have a portrait and biography for one of the morning papers. Cyclopedias, both of Pennsylvania and the United States, were looked over in vain. In the Pennsylvania Cyclopedia are found the works and the firm name advertised, but that was all. The last thing consulted was your Cyclopedia, and there was all the information and an excellent likeness. Both portrait and biography were well reproduced in the Commercial Gazette of the next morning."

Philadelphia Daily Report.—"It is broader in its scope than any similar work ever before attempted, in the fact that it aims in addition to the celebrities whose exalted station is a matter of common knowledge, to include also that host of lesser lights of second or third degree, who may never shine in the first magnitude, but who nevertheless deserve to be known and recognized for what they have achieved in a narrower domain. The material relating to Pennsylvania shows thorough, accurate, intelligent discrimination, and a comprehensive knowledge of Pennsylvania men and affairs."

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

A photogravure reproduction of

THE ORIGINAL OIL PAINTING

By FRANK B. CARPENTER

The only portrait of Lincoln ever painted from life

Lincoln's face held such depths of feeling and mobility of expression that no photograph satisfied his friends. To afford the amplest opportunity for careful study of his ever varying features, Mr. Frank B. Carpenter, the eminent portrait painter, was invited to make his home at the White House, where for six months he was the guest of President Lincoln, in the closest intimacy of family life.

This portrait has never before been given to the public. The original oil painting is in the possession of the artist's widow, and is valued at $20,000. This photogravure reproduction is a perfect copy of the original, and has all the softness and depth of the oil painting.

The plate is 11 x 14 inches, and is printed on plate paper, 19 x 24 inches.

Dr. William F. Muhlenberg, Reading, Pa.—"I am pleased with the volumes of your National Cyclopedia of American Biography, which seems to be a work of exceptional value."

THE NATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY

is not a Directory of living Americans or a Biographical Dictionary of Names, but a Cyclopedia, containing lengthy and carefully written biographies of persons prominently identified with every feature of the development and growth of this country, since its discovery.

A glance at the dates throughout this calendar will show that the earliest period of United States history is as fully and thoroughly covered as the later.

It is a History of the United States as illustrated in the lives of the founders, builders and defenders of the republic, and of the men and women who are doing the work and moulding the thought of the present time.

Complete in 12 royal octavo volumes, half Russia (only).

Price, $10.00 per volume

10,000 PORTRAITS

THE NATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY goes beyond every other work ever published, in that it not only sets forth the best that the country has knowledge of, but brings these personalities face to face, through life-like portraits, which embellish many of the biographies. The task has been herculean, but the result makes the work monumental, whose value can hardly be realized.

Great pains have been taken to secure from the families or descendants the best likenesses, which are reproduced under their superintendence and approval, and, in a large number of instances, are given to the world for the first time through the pages of this work.

Never before has such a collection of authentic portraits been made.

AMERICAN GENEALOGY

"There is now growing up a taste for genealogical trees and family histories. The singular development of the Revolutionary and Colonial societies of America has made an immense demand for biographical, genealogical and historical information. In this work the New Englanders take the lead; next to them come the Knickerbockers, of New York. The Palatines have made a beginning, as have the Scotch settlers of Virginia and Tennessee, the Mayflower descendants, and a few of the Cavalier families of the South."—THE MAGAZINE OF AMERICAN HISTORY, September, 1902.

THE NATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY

has made a specialty of the genealogies and family histories of the subjects, tracing the descent back to the earliest American ancestor, and as most of these records have been obtained from the families and descendants themselves, and owing to the carefulness with which they have been revised and corrected, the work is the most valuable for such research that has ever been published.

New York

which has been over twelve years in preparation, was undertaken to provide a biographical record of the United States worthy to rank with the great National Biographies of Europe. It is not a Directory of living Americans, or a Biographical Dictionary of Names, but a Cyclopedia, containing lengthy and carefully written biographical sketches of all persons prominently connected with the history of the nation—rulers, statesmen, soldiers; persons noteworthy in the Church, at the Bar, in literature, art, science, and the professions, and also those who have contributed to the industrial and commercial progress and growth of the country from its earliest times. It gives more than mere facts; it sets forth the underlying motives to individual endeavor, the method and means of progress, the aim and aspiration of thought and the secret of success, and brings a feeling of personal acquaintance, which leaves a lasting interest in its personalities, and gives to a busy age an epitome of the nation's life, which can be placed in every library. The aim of the work is to exemplify and perpetuate, in the broadest sense, American civilization through its chief personalities.

JAMES T. WHITE & CO., New York

White's PHYSIOLOGICAL Manikin

A substitute for the $1,500 French Manikin

PREPARED UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF

FRANK H. HAMILTON, M. D., LL. D.

One of the four physicians who attended President Garfield.

It is a LIFE-SIZE figure of the human body, which may be opened out, layer after layer, showing the various covers of skin, muscle, etc., down to the skeleton, and displaying all the internal organs in their proper positions and relative dimensions, so that every part and function of the body is shown as completely as it would be in the human subject.

It supplies the simplest, easiest and cheapest method of teaching physiology, and shows to even the youngest children the philosophy of life and how to preserve health.

It is endorsed by the leading Educators and Physicians everywhere as the most perfect means of education in Physiology ever devised.

Price, $25.00. Carriage prepaid

American Engineers

The greatest engineering feats have been accomplished by American engineers, and yet there is no information upon the subject available to the public outside the strictly technical journals. THE NATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY contains a full representation of this profession, and the biographies include more important descriptions of the engineering work, which may be easily found through the complete cross-reference Index.

This department was supervised by the eminent engineer, Mr. J. James R. Croes, of New York, and a past president of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

THE NATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY is the only publication containing the lives of all the presidents of:

The American Society of Civil Engineers
Or the American Society of Mechanical Engineers
Or the American Institute of Electrical Engineers
Or the American Institute of Mining Engineers

It represents thoroughly every section of the United States and every period of United States History.

Portrait of Lincoln

In a remarkable degree it discloses that tender, human side of his character, which the world learned to know and love, and it portrays his naturally cheerful temperament, while revealing that undercurrent of sadness which pervaded his later years. It is the only portrait that satisfactorily interprets Lincoln's character. It is also the only portrait of President Lincoln ever painted from life. Lincoln himself said of it: "There is more of me in this portrait than in any representation of me ever made."

Captive Memories

This is a beautiful book of original verse which commemorates the various affection days of life, and expresses in poetical phrase what every man and woman would like to say in congratulation to friend, lover, or helpmate on these occasions. There are fifty of these days, which are chronicled in such exceptionally beautiful verse, that Whittier characterized them as "worthy of the troubadours of Provence." They are embellished with beautiful examples of California flowers, besides forty full-page illustrations of Cupids, representing the various phases of affection throughout a lifetime, making it a Gift Book of unusual beauty and desirableness, having all the appropriateness and fragrance of a Bouquet of Flowers, picked specially for the occasion. These commemoration days are arranged so as to portray in natural order the awakening, development, progress, and perfection of love throughout a lifetime. "All the world loves a lover," and certainly an ideal one will be found in this beautiful volume, which might be appropriately called, "The Memoirs of a Lover."

American Inventors

Very little information about American inventors will be found in the many books of reference, but THE NATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY has as full and complete a list of these important and valuable biographies as the other professions and classes.

The inventor of the fundamental feature of the successful reaping-machine (and other valuable devices also) finds no place in any other publication. Dying prematurely, his work and achievement have been forgotten, and are now for the first time correctly and fully recorded in this Permanent Work of Reference.

THE NATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY contains the lives of 400 noted successful inventors, a larger number than will be found in all other works together.

Peabody Institute, Baltimore, Md.—"Your National Cyclopedia of American Biography is in daily use here, and we find it very convenient in reference work. It is very useful."

10,000 Portraits

and over, like this sample, will be found in THE NATIONAL CYCLOPÆDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY.

Never before in any country has such a collection of authentic portraits been attempted. In the latest catalogue of the Perry pictures there are only 256 portraits, including all nationalities. Here are collected in a convenient and accessible form over 10,000 portraits of the most prominent Americans, living and dead, and such a collection is alone worth the price of the set.

I have spent considerable time in looking over your Prospectus, and I think I can say that I have never before seen so fine small engravings for book illustration. Your idea of a portrait gallery is certainly grand. In my teaching I at one time made a selection of one or two hundred portraits at Soule's in Boston, for the sole purpose of more definitely interesting my students in the persons whom they represented. I am also very favorably impressed with the scope and the magnitude of the enterprise.

HIRAM HADLEY, University of New Mexico.

Complete in twelve royal octavo volumes, half Russia only. Price, $10.00 per volume.

Prospectus and Specimen Pages will be sent upon request.

ENORMOUS COST OF PRODUCTION.

The many difficulties connected with the preparation of an original Biographical Cyclopedia that shall be complete and at the same time absolutely accurate and reliable are beyond the comprehension of the uniniated. The task of compiling a general Cyclopedia of Knowledge is simplicity in comparison. In the latter case the publishers procure the services of specialists who are authorities in their particular field; the information is available in easily accessible reference books, and when the articles have been written they are ready for the printer, unless perhaps there are one or more illustrations to make. A general Encyclopedia is a collection of known facts. The National Cyclopedia of American Biography is a collection of facts, many of which were not known, and where to obtain them not known. Many specialists were employed to supply the information and statistics with which they were familiar, but not one of them was able to furnish the personal records, family histories and American genealogies that were necessary for the completion of every Biographical sketch. Such information could not be obtained in any one locality or any one center; the ends of the country must be reached, and even then an enormous amount of research was necessary. For the past twelve years the United States has been searched for these facts and records. Associate Editors were appointed in, or sent to, every State in the Union, and writers and biographers were engaged to search local publications. A prominent chemist, an authority on the history of petroleum, for instance, was employed to prepare the biographies of subjects related to that product. Among the names to be thus included was one Luther Atwood, whose experiments, discoveries and inventions have done more than any other man for the growth and development of this, one of the greatest of American industries. His scientific achievements were well known in the professional world, but in order to complete a proper biographical sketch of the man, inquiry was made, literally, from Maine, where he was at one time engaged in business, to California, where a family connection was finally found, and through whom were obtained the desired facts, which hitherto had never been published. In this systematic research were enlisted the services of over three hundred Nominating and Advisory Editors scattered throughout the United States. Instances similar to this are beyond number. See December 4, and "How the Cyclopedia Is Made."

The scope of the National Cyclopedia of American Biography embraced the life of every Governor, Colonial and State, and every Chief-Justice of every State in the Union. The historical portion was a comparatively simple task for the biographer, but not so the personal data. Their names were sought in the local histories in vain. Some had removed to other States; the families of some were scattered; some left no family, and it was the problem of a detective agency to discover the early history of such subjects.

After a relative or descendant had been located, several letters were necessary, usually, to obtain the desired information. The biography completed, a typewritten copy was made for the first revision; a copy was sent for correction, and in cases where no descendant was found it was submitted to some competent authority for the elimination of any possible errors. If the corrections were considerable, it was typewritten again before going to the printer. After it was set in type a galley proof was submitted for final correction. The biography was read no less than twelve times by editors and proof-readers, the aim in every case being to make the biographies absolutely unimpeachable in all records and statements of fact. The best writers in the country were employed in the preparation, and oftentimes $100 was paid for a single biography, written by one eminently qualified, but even then a proof was submitted to the subject's family for correction.

The portraits and other illustrations, of which there are about 12,000, are another costly item. Oil paintings were photographed; steel engravings, old prints and old photographs purchased; daguerreotypes copied, and many new photographs made from life, to make this the greatest collection of authentic portraits the world has ever seen. The illustrations were made from large pen and ink drawings executed by skilled artists. In many instances drawings were made two and three times to secure absolute likenesses.

Finally, obtaining the autographs entailed a no small amount of difficulty and expense, in a number of cases copies having to be made by photography from valuable documents.

HOW THE CYCLOPEDIA IS MADE.

[From the Chicago Daily News.]

A little brochure recently brought out by the publishers of "The National Cyclopedia of American Biography" reveals the trials and tribulations of encyclopedic editors, and at the same time throws a side-light on the temper of J. McNeill Whistler, the famous artist. One of the greatest difficulties that a compiler of biographies has to contend with is that of securing trustworthy data from the subjects themselves.

Take for example Mr. Whistler and the publishers of the Cyclopedia above mentioned. They wrote over twenty letters before they received the desired information. The first three were addressed to Mr. Whistler. No response. Each one was more courteous than the preceding, and each inclosed full explanations, with apologies in the last two intimating that the first epistle had miscarried. Next, they tried Mr. Whistler's publishers, Messrs. Heinemann; then they tried Mr. Whistler again; then they once more tackled the artist. Then they asked Frank H. Norton, of this city, to write the biography. Mr. Norton found great difficulty in procuring Mr. Whistler's West Point record, and wrote to the Superintendent of the Military Academy for it.

Once more the publishers took a hand, and sent a number of epistles containing such questions as, "Have you any information regarding the birth and parentage of James A. McNeill Whistler, the artist? None of the books gives his exact birthday." To Thomas Wilson: "In the September Book Buyer appears an article by you on 'Whistler at West Point,' and in the article appears this statement: 'Young Whistler's mother was a Miss Winans, of Baltimore, daughter of one of the oldest and most distinguished families of Maryland.' Will you kindly give us your authority for this statement?" Then Whistler's art dealer was appealed to.

At length, after four years of weary waiting, Mr. Whistler, through his London publisher, consented to revise his biography should the proof be submitted to him. But, of course, there was nothing ready. Then very slowly and from many and varied sources the matter began to accumulate. Then more waiting and appeals to John T. Whistler and to Jackson McNeill in the hope that these gentlemen were related to the imperturbable artist. And at length, after nearly five years had passed since the first note was dispatched to London, what a sigh of relief must have gone forth from the editorial sanctum as these words were penned to James Abbott McNeill Whistler:

"Dear Sir: Inclosed please find a galley proof of your biography for our Cyclopedia, which is now submitted for final revision."

Such is the story of the attempt to secure only 1,000 words concerning one solitary subject.

A Cyclopedia of American History

The biographical sketches of The National Cyclopædia of American Biography will be found to be considerably longer than in any other work of reference. The reason for this is that the articles include not only the full personal data of the subjects, but also an account of the movement, institution, industry, or profession with which their lives were identified.

By the thorough and systematic methods of the editors to make the Cyclopædia cover every period of United States history, as well as every section of the country—methods which necessitated an unprecedented amount of original research and investigation (see "Enormous Cost of Production")—there has been collected in this new Work of Reference a vast amount of Historical and Cyclopædic information, all of which is made immediately accessible by a very thorough and complete Cross-Reference and Topical Index.

Emerson says: "All history is biography," and this, the greatest Cyclopædia of American Biography, is also the largest Cyclopædia of American History.
